One■Page Barnstorm Plan

Purpose
To rebuild trust and civic connection by traveling town to town, meeting people where they already gather, and supporting local community spaces through conversation, shared meals, and modest fundraising. This is a listening effort, not a rally tour.

Structure
Travel is organized through volunteer drivers. Visits are short—same day or overnight—followed by a return home to rest before continuing. Sustainability and health come first.

Locations
Church basements, community or veterans' halls, town meeting rooms, cafes, diners, and other informal public spaces. Some stops may be organized events; others may simply be conversations.

Activities
Open listening sessions, small group discussions, shared meals or potlucks, and one■on■one conversations. No stage is required. Remarks, if any, are brief and responsive.

Funding Model
Participation is free. Voluntary donations may support food, hall use, gas, and local needs. Funds raised locally remain focused on local use, with transparency.

Measure of Success
Success is measured by conversations started, relationships formed, and communities gathering again—not crowd size.

Guiding Principle: Move slow enough to listen. Stay humble enough to be invited back.

Campaign Revitalization Network (CRN)

What It Is
CRN is a simple coordination tool that helps communities organize town visits, volunteers, rides, and gathering spaces. It functions like a digital bulletin board, supporting people meeting face to face.

What It Is Not
CRN is not a social media platform, a data■harvesting system, or a top■down campaign control tool. It does not replace local leadership or decision■making.

How It's Used
Local volunteers may offer transportation, host a gathering, organize a meal, or spread the word. Participation is optional and flexible.

Transparency & Trust
Events are posted openly. Any funds raised are described clearly. There are no hidden sponsors and no professional gatekeeping.

Philosophy
Healthy democracy is built around tables, in halls and churches, and through conversations that do not fit into soundbites. CRN exists to support those spaces, not replace them.

In one sentence: CRN helps communities gather, talk, and support one another—town by town, face to face.
